Aspire. Achieve. Advance.

Explore the qualities and capabilities that make a successful educational leader, not in terms of managing budgets or organising administration, but in understanding change in an educational context, creating relevant, effective strategies for dealing with change and in learning to drive positive change in culturally diverse settings.

Through self-reflection, goal-setting and other practical tools, this programme seeks to equip you with the confidence and know-how to become problem-solver within different educational settings, making a difference in the lives of students, organisations and communities across the globe.

As a Roehampton Online student, you will have the opportunity to:

- Develop skills relevant to career advancement
- Increase your confidence
- Identify career goals and track your progress
- Manage your studies on your schedule
- Gain insights from a diverse student population
- Develop a social network within the university, helping you stay motivated
- Establish lasting professional relationships

The learning paradigm at the University of Roehampton Online suits me perfectly as a working adult with demanding work and family commitments. It has revived my love of education and my passion for learning.

Why choose this programme?

Acquire knowledge and develop skills that will help distinguish you as a leader across a range of educational roles and in a variety of contexts – local, national or international.

Reflect on your own leadership style and develop ways to strengthen the essential skills needed to evaluate and solve problems.

Apply research-based principles and practices to become an effective and responsive leader in a culturally diverse range of settings, and build effective learning communities.

Develop evidence-based solutions to real problems you have identified in your school or organisation, and formulate strategies for implementing those solutions.
